Scholarship Application 2024

NSHE is thrilled to offer two scholarships: one (1) valued at $1,500 for a current hospital facilities employee and another one (1) valued at $500 for a current student. To be eligible, the hospital employee must be employed with a medical facility in the State of Nebraska for at least one year, while the student must be enrolled in a career, technical, associate, or bachelor's program with a keen interest in the field of Healthcare Operations.

The purpose of these scholarships is twofold: firstly, to provide financial assistance to a hospital facilities team member who wishes to attend a national ASHE conference in 2024/25, and secondly, to foster interest in supporting hospitals from a Plant Operations perspective, encompassing areas such as mechanical, electrical, construction, and other similar facility support roles.

Interested individuals must submit an essay explaining why they are applying for this scholarship. Hospital employees should detail why they are interested in attending a national ASHE event and how it will benefit their current role and overall career development. Proof of employment will be required for verification.

For students, the essay should focus on their interest in Hospital Operations and the Career Pathway they intend to pursue using this scholarship. Proof of enrollment in an educational program related to their chosen career or proof of employment in a relevant trade association/other will be required. For instance, if a student plans to go into the electrical trade, the scholarship could be used for tools, equipment, etc.

While attending a social networking event held by the NSHE group is not mandatory, it is highly recommended. These events include monthly meetings with lunch, opportunities to network with various companies, and discussions on healthcare-related topics. Additionally, there is an Annual Fall Meeting associated with the NHA Annual Conference.

Through these scholarships, NSHE aims to support and promote individuals in the healthcare industry who are enthusiastic about hospital facilities/operations, contributing to the overall advancement of the field.
